Who we are

The Water Directorate is widely recognised as the peak body and industry leader supporting Councils and local water utilities (LWUs) across regional NSW. We provide trusted, independent advice, technical support and advocacy on behalf of our members.

Backed by decades of industry knowledge, our strength lies in the depth of experience within our Executive Committee and our extensive network of water industry professionals across regional NSW.

Our Executive Committee, comprising 18 elected members and two appointed representatives, meets regularly to discuss the activities and strategic direction of the sector, share insights, and collaborate on key issues shaping the future of water services in our region.

What we do

We provide an independent source of advice to Councils on water and sewerage operations.

We promote a more efficient operation of Local Government water and sewerage infrastructure.

We provide networking opportunities for water and sewerage engineers to share knowledge and improve communication within the industry.

We develop technical publications and best practice standards and guidelines.

We provide a platform for information-sharing and collaboration across rural and regional LWUs.

We advocate for improvements and better outcomes for LWUs to state and federal governments as the peak body in NSW.
